The Boston Tea Party

By December of 1773, American colonists had grown increasingly frustrated. Among their complaints was that the British government had imposed a tea tax on colonists. The Americans objected because it was taxation without representation--that is, they had no say in who was elected to parliament. As tensions grew, plans formed to protest the tax by pouring hundreds of containers of tea into the Boston Harbor. One of the first acts of protest in America, the Boston Tea Party helped spark America's fight for independence.

The Boston Tea Party

"On the night of December 16, 1773, a small band of Bostonians, some poorly disguised as American Indians, boarded three ships in Boston Harbor and threw 340 chests of tea overboard. In three hours that cold night a chain reaction was started that led with little pause to the Declaration of Independence. With a masterly grasp of activities on both sides of the ocean, Professor Labaree shows how things came to such a pass that within twelve months the colonists were convinced that their very freedom was at stake, while the rulers of Britain had concluded that the colonists were in rebellion.\"--Publisher.
